

I am writing regarding the possible interruption of KLOVE from some areas due to the switch to LPFM. I have been a KLOVE listener (and financial supporter) since stumbling upon it about 2 years ago. I love the music and message of KLOVE. It is so hard to find good secular music and even harder to find good Christian music; it seems that so much of the airwaves are bombarded by messages of the secular world - drugs, sex, alcohol --- is this what we want our kids to be listening to? Listening to KLOVE helps me to keep things in perspective and gets my day off to a great start. Many listeners stumble upon the message of KLOVE just as I have - let's not take that away from anyone but interfering in the current broadcasting system. Who knows when someone really needs to hear the message of KLOVE - the positive and encouraging message of our Lord's love for us -- I know I often need to be reminded of this!
